

Changing Lives

The Kingston Hospital and the Wound Healing Center

WILLIAM MARX lives in the New Paltz area and shares how he came to use the Wound Healing Center services:

“I was diagnosed with a pre-cancerous spot on my left knee. After the surgery, the wound on my left leg was not healing. I was fortunate to learn about the Wound Healing Center (located at the Medical Arts Building) next to The Kingston Hospital. I was a regular visitor to the Center for nearly two months while they worked on healing my wound. I received excellent care at the facility; Dr. Kutler and the staff were all excellent. I am truly grateful for the health care I received at the Wound Healing Center.”

Changing Lives

William's case is not unusual, but he was lucky to have the Wound Healing Center nearby. Located in the Medical Arts Building, the Center offers both inpatients and outpatients a path to recovery with a comprehensive approach to healing the wound and the cause from a specialized team of health professionals accredited in wound care management.

A complete spectrum of healing treatments are available to the patient, including a Hyperbaric Oxygen Chamber, located in The Kingston Hospital, adjacent to the Center. This non-surgical, non-invasive healing therapy stimulates cell growth and healthy tissue through the inhalation of pure oxygen.

Wounds that don't heal significantly in a normal amount of time are usually an indication of serious underlying health issues. Left untreated, the smallest cut may result in chronic infection, gangrene, and even amputation. Nearly 5 million Americans suffer from chronic non-healing wounds.

The Wound Healing Center is an essential health care service that changes lives and needs your financial support. Every donation to The Kingston Hospital Foundation is an investment in the continuation, improvement, and expansion of essential services like these for patients in Ulster County and surrounding communities.

More importantly, any gift to the Foundation shows you believe in keeping these services vital and available to the community, and in supporting the mission of The Kingston Hospital to serve the health care needs of all.
